

ERIC SELTZER

COMEDIAN / NEW YORK

Eric Seltzer is a NY spot on comic impressionist with Jewish infused influence who brings classic 20th century celebrities into the 21st century with current political and social agendas. He is also a singing impressionist and award-winning actor.

He works PG to R rated performances and can adapt to most any crowd.

Eric has worked with Fred Willard on Comedy Central. He has trained with Steve Rosenfield at The American Comedy Institute, as well as Improv training at The Gotham City Improv, and The Upright Citizens Brigade. He has done podcasts, including Adam Shandler's "Bad to the Dad" podcast, and he is a regular on Facebook's Zoom, "The Jody Oliver Show", on Sunday nights.
